We are writing to address any questions you may have about Marin Clean Energy, how it works and what it means for you. We are aware that over the past few weeks there has been much false and misleading information circulated about Marin Clean Energy. We want to make sure you have the facts.

The most important thing to know is that Marin Clean Energy will not put you or any other energy customer at risk, financial or otherwise. That's our promise. All Marin Clean Energy does is provide you with double the amount of clean, renewable energy than you're currently getting from PG&E – at the same rates.

Nothing else about your utility service changes. You get the same reliable service you've always had. We purchase the power from renewable sources like solar, wind, biomass and geothermal. PG&E continues to deliver it through its wires to your home or business. And PG&E continues to send your monthly bill, provide the same customer service and repair and maintain its power lines and equipment.

It's that simple. Marin Clean Energy was created by local communities that wanted more of their energy to come from non-polluting renewable sources – energy that helps reduce our dependence on fossil fuels and fight global warming. PG&E simply isn't able to provide that – now or even in the foreseeable future.

We encourage you to learn more about Marin Clean Energy. And if you really want to make a difference after you learn more, you can sign up for Marin Clean Energy's Deep Green program, which offers you 100% renewable energy for a little bit more on your monthly bill. To sign up for Deep Green, please visit our website at www.MarinCleanEnergy.info or call us toll-free at 888-632-3674.

Sincerely,

Dawn Weisz
Director, Marin Energy Authority

Marin Clean Energy is a program of the Marin Energy Authority, a publicly approved, not-for-profit joint powers authority composed of the County of Marin and the cities of San Rafael, Mill Valley, Fairfax, Sausalito, San Anselmo, Tiburon and Belvedere.
